

40th Annual Clayfolk Show & Sale Press Kit

Thank you for partnering with Clayfolk to spread the word of this unique community event.

This year we are celebrating our 40th Clayfolk Show. There will be displays celebrating our history as well as a gallery of black and white photos, with a Favorite Booth and Favorite Potter contest and cake on Friday night.

The 40th annual Clayfolk Show offers an incredible range of hand crafted pottery in a festive environment featuring live entertainment, ceramic demonstrations and a chance for adults and children to get into the mud.

Founded in 1976, to promote the work of local and regional potters and to make the art of clay accessible to our community, Clayfolk awards annual ceramic scholarships, maintains a resource library available to the public, and provides clay demonstrations at our show and throughout the year at other events.

The show, managed and run by the potters themselves, presents a unique opportunity for the public to see a wide range of pottery styles as well as to interact with the artists. It has become one of the most successful shows in the region, drawing potters and patrons from over the Pacific Northwest, adding to the reputation of the Rogue Valley as a regional cultural center.

BRIEF HISTORY

Clayfolk began in 1976 when a small group of potters started meeting to share ideas, experiences, and potluck dinners. Today the membership represents a cross section of ceramicists in Oregon and northern California, ranging from well-known studio potters and sculptors to students new to the media. Members share a fascination for, and love of working with clay.

A non-profit educational organization made up of volunteers, Clayfolk sponsors the popular the Ellice T. Johnston Scholarship for the Ceramic Arts. This award, created in 1985 to honor one of Clayfolk's founding members, is designed to help a student enrolled in college or art school continue his/her studies. Clayfolk currently dedicates $2000 a year to this notable scholarship.

In furthering its educational mission, Clayfolk has donated many ceramic books, magazines and videos to the two country libraries. Additional gifts are made annually.

The group sponsors workshops each year. Recent ones featured Lana Wilson's hand-building techniques and Terry Inokuma's altered wheel forms and brushwork. Most workshops meet at local schools or private studios. Previous workshops have offered sessions with Australian artist Ian Currie, Adrian Arleo, Hank Murrow, Maria Simon, Ellen Currans, Wesley Anderegg, Craig Martell and Linda Owen, Terry Inokuma, Inayoshi Osama, Steven Hill and Terry Nelson.

The annual Clayfolk Pottery Show & Sale, now in the 40th year, is a unique event in the Rogue Valley. It features an impressive variety of work in clay, providing educational opportunities both clay artists and for admirers alike.

Membership in Clayfolk is open to anyone interested in the ceramic arts. Proceeds from the annual Pottery Show and Sale and membership dues fund the organization's educational efforts.

Mission Statement

Clayfolk is registered with the state of Oregon as a nonprofit corporation (not a 501c) Registration number: 130554-13

Clayfolk is an all-volunteer organization whose main purpose is education, scholarships, workshops, demonstrations, donations to the library and Children's Festival.

The Ellice T. Johnston Scholarship for the Ceramics Arts is one of Clayfolk's is one of the most notable functions. This award is given annually to a ceramic student at a collage or art school to further their studies. The scholarship is currently $2000 annually.

The group also sponsors several workshops each year with internationally known clay artists.

Furthering its educational mission Clayfolk donates ceramic books and videos to both the Jackson and Josephine County library systems.

Clayfolk's primary fundraiser is a yearly show and sale of members work.
